Nominated for the MAN OF THE YEAR: C. H. Wells, who contributed free of charge his loud speaking device to the church to broadcast Christmas carols. He is about the only one who, as far as I know, did any unselfish thing last year in Grenada. May be this item will cause Wells to fix our radio which he has kept about six months.

Foods Are Plentiful Now

The patriotic citizen, wishing to cooperate on the home front, is being aided by the suggestion made by War Office of distribution of foods, especially the "no point" "low point" foods which are so plentiful at certain times of the year. The U. S. Department of Agriculture, aided by Food Advisory Committees lists certain foods as those you are urged to eat now—they are eggs, white potatoes and canned peas.

Other "non point" "low point" foods are oranges, canned peas and wax beans, peanut butter, citrus marmalade, dehydrated soups, grits, wheat flour and bread, macroni, spaghetti, noodles, oatmeal and rye breakfast food. Plenty of frozen vegetables and garden produce.

Major Bateman Promoted To Lt.-Colonel

Friends of Major Needham B. Bateman will learn with genuine interest of his promotion in foreign service to the important rank of Lt.-Colonel.

By order of General Eisenhower, the promotion became effective on April 1, 1944.

For many months Lt.-Col. Bateman (then Major Bateman) was Surgeon at the Station Hospital, Camp McCain. He lived in Grenada at the home of Mrs. Carrie Clanton.

Congratulations, Colonel.

Judge Anderson Asks Return To Supreme Court

Tupelo, Miss.—Judge W. D. Anderson, of Tupelo, who has represented the 3rd or Northern District of Mississippi on the State Supreme Court for 25 years, announced today as a candidate for re-election.

In a statement characteristic of the rugged honor of the distinguishe North Mississippi jurist, he stated that he was 82 years old but is in better health than he has been for many years.

Judge Anderson based his claim for re-election on the fact that he is better able now, by reason of his long service, to represent his section on the Supreme Court bench than when he was first elected.

He estimates that he has heard seven or eight thousand cases during his long tenure in Jackson and that he has personally written more than 1000 opinions.

Judge Anderson promised in his announcement that "If I should become unable from any cause to do my share of the work of the court, I will resign."

"Going back to my age," Judge Anderson said in conclusion, "Justice Holmes served very ably on the Supreme Court of the United States until he was over ninety."

A drum duet by Frank Houston and Jimmy Mitchell was rated superior. O. D. Spratlin, Jr.'s cornet solo was rated excellent. Fred Farmer's cornet solo was rated good.

FLOOD CONTROL MEASURE PROVES WORTH IN THE YAZOO CABIN

Lt. Col. R. W. Sauer, District Engineer, Vicksburg Engineer District, recently stated that the Yazoo River project, authorized by the Flood Control Act of June 15, 1936, although only about 50 percent complete, reduced Yazoo Basin river stages, resulting from a series of the most severe storms over the basin, from 1 foot to 16.5 feet. Col. Sauer's statement follows: "As a result of the operation of the Sardis and Arkabutla Reservoirs in the upper section of the Yazoo River Basin, augmented by channel improvements below the dams, flood stages resulting from a series of the most severe rain storms in this valley were reduced from 1 foot to 16.5 feet. Although a considerable amount of land was overflowed, the reduction obtained prevented overflow of several hundred thousands of acres of rich Del to lands which are vital for raising food and fiber crops essential to the successful prosecution of the war.

"Rainfall in the Yazoo Basin for February was more than twice the normal amount, ranging from 6 inches at Sardis to 10.5 inches at Swan Lake. The average rainfall during the storm of March 27-29 throughout the entire basin was 6.5 inches, the heaviest single fall centering around Grenada where the three-day total amounted to 12.9 inches. The rainfall was of the thunderstorm type, being concentrated in intense bursts of short duration, thus producing high flood stages. The Yalobusha River at Grenada, Miss., rose 10 feet in 24 hours and exceeded the previous maximum flood stage of record by approximately 2 feet. The discharge of the river at this point was approximately 67 percent greater than that for the 1932 flood. The crest stage at Swan Lake on the Tallahatchie River was 30.2 feet, the highest stage since 1939, while at Greenwood the crest was 38.5 feet, which was only 1.6 feet below the 1932 stage, the highest of record. The area most seriously affected by the current high water was comprised of unprotected lands extending from the latitude of Greenwood to a point approximately 20 miles to its north.

"The City of Greenwood and much of the area downstream are protected by small locally-built levees which had been cut in many places to provide dainage for surrounding lands. Local interests, with the assistance and supervision of the Greenwood Suboffice of the Vicksburg Engineer District, under the immediate direction of Mr. Aubrey Edmondson, Engineer in Charge, were successful in effecting emergency closure of the openings and in raising the levees where they were deficient in height. More than 300,000 sandbags were used in fighting this high water and approximately $75,000 was expended by the Government for materials and supervision.

"The flood gates of the Sardis Dam were closed on the first morning of the rainfall involved and all rainfall above this dam was completely impounded. The storage of the current rainfall, added to previous rainfall already impounded, resulted in the storage of nearly 236 billion gallons but required only about one-half of the storage capacity of the reservoir for its retention. The gates at the Sardis Dam will remain closed until stages below the dam have fallen below bankful stages, at which time the water will be released so as not to aggrevate flood conditions. Ninety-five percent of the peak flow of the Coldwater River above Arkabutla Dam was also impounded; and, while this resulted in the storage of more than 53½ billion gallons, only one-half of the capacity of the reservoir was utilized. This water is being released in such quantities as will not aggrevate flood conditions below the dam. These reservoirs, together with other channel improvements below these dams, have materially reduced the flood stages of the Yazoo River at Greenwood, Miss. Stage reductions directly due to flood-control works completed to date are as follows: On Coldwater River, an average of 11 feet ranging from 16.5 feet at Arkabutla Dam to 6.5 feet at Sardis; on Little Tallahatchie River, an average of 8 feet ranging from 12 feet at Sardis to 5 feet on Panola-Quitman Floodway at Porter's Ferry Bridge; on Tallahatchie River, an average of 3 feet with reduction of 3.5 feet at Lambert and 3.0 feet at Swan Lake; and on the Yazoo River, 1 foot at Greenwood.

"Construction of the levees and channel improvements provided for in the authorized Yazoo Basin project, together with completion of the Enid and New Grenada Reservoirs, will protect practically all of the area from a repetition of overflow from the Yazoo River and its principal tributaries."

CONSTRUCTION OF LEVEES ESSENTIAL

Lt. Col. R. W. Sauer, District Engineer, Vicksburg Engineer District, today announced that construction of the uncompleted levees and channel improvements in the Yazoo Basin, as authorized in the Yazoo Basin Flood Control Plan, is essential for flood protection in the Yazoo Basin. Colonel Sauer's statement follows:

"Subsequent to release of information concerning the recent floods in the Yazoo Basin, it has come to the attention of this office that local interests may be misinterpreting the necessity for completion of levees and channel improvements below the Arkabutla, Sardis, and proposed Enid and New Grenada Dams. In this connection, it stressed that recent floods were not basin-wide in origin and that greater rainfall with larger volumes of water accumulation from runoff in the drainage basin may be expected. Completion of all levees and channel improvements below these dams as contemplated in the Flood Control Plan for the Yazoo Basin is essential to reasonable protection of the areas involved."

McDaniel, of Kosciusko, Miss., and Miss Milstead is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Milstead, of Water Valley, Miss.

The local recruiting officer, Mr. Pigford, made the above announcement with pride as the two young ladies mentioned above are the high type of young American womanhood sought by the WAVES. We hope that their enlistment will inspire other young women to enlist.

Seen, Heard and Told By The Editor

Extensive repairs are being made to the floors of the two entrances to the Presbyterian Church.

Congratulations to WAC Helen Van Coutren, who has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant. Col. Ryder outranked Major Waite out of her.

We hope that Pvt. Floyd Ashmore of Fort Ord, California, will enjoy the GCW which his wife is having sent to him, and also hope that he will soon be a Pfc.

Ask Bet Horn to tell you the tale of the cat-loving lady who planted a lot of rose bushes.

Things at Oxberry must be prosperous, for one of our hands did not get in until the 15th to get his "draw."

Mrs. J. W. Little did not want to miss a copy, so she opened a large purse and drew out two dollars for a renewal.

I notice that the tracks of Dick Latham, of Holcomb, appear on the cash book. Dick is no spring chicken, but he gets about as well as he did 25 years ago when I first knew him.

WHERE WERE YOU DURING THE WAR, young man and young woman?

I saw a WAC in fatigue clothes the other morning. She had a flower in her hat. I saw her, but an MP did not.

Here is one who has been gone a long, long time from our mailing list: Mrs. O. A. Roberts, of Jackson. Welcome, Sister Roberts. Have a seat in the amen corner.

Just a hint to the election commissioners of city and county: put all men as officers of the election.

WHERE WERE YOU DURING THE WAR, young man and young woman, is a question that you will have to answer when the war is over.

Junior Angevine, who is still sick abed, sent in his renewal. Hope he gets out soon.

Radeye just came by and denied that he had relinquished his seat on the post office steps, tho he has not been on the job as steadily as he used to.

Brother John T. Taylor, of Route 3 has been added to our list, and is heartily welcomed. We cut off another "T" to make room for him.

There's no use YET in getting pessimistic about raising crops. The season is late, it is true, but, with good weather and good seasons in the future, Grenada County can yet make a fine crop.

Hurrah for Troy Hankins, who has become a Corporal, and also a subscriber to the GCW. He is an original member of Grenada's home company.

Wasted time and space and advice: soldiers, save your money for the world is going to be in a hulluva mess when peace comes.

Lloyd Lott has returned to the fold, like a lost stray sheep looking for light and edification.

I hope it will not faze the sensibilities of some of my fastidious readers to say that I saw one of the prettiest pair of female legs the other day that I have seen in a coon's age.

FOR RE-ELECTION
Supreme Court Justice
NORTHERN (3RD) DISTRICT

JUDGE W. D. ANDERSON

I am asking the Democratic voters of the Northern Supreme Court District to nominate and elect me to another term on the Supreme Court. It is true that I am in my eighty-second year, but I am in better health than I have been in a good many years; my hearing is perfect and my eyesight, except for the necessity of reading glasses. When my present term expires I will have been on the Supreme Court twenty-five and a half years, counting one and a half years I served by appointment during Noel's administration. Since I have been a member of the Court we have decided probably seven or eight thousand cases. Those in which opinions were written are embodied in seventy-one volumes of the Supreme Court Reports. Probably I have written more than one thousand of the opinions. If I was competent to hold the position when I first became a member of the Court, that experience and training should make me much more competent now. I promise that if I should become unable from any cause to do my share of the work of the Court I will resign. I will not be a pensioner on the State. Neither the loss of the salary nor any other consideration will tempt me to violate that promise. When I became a member of the Court I had already accumulated a moderate financial competency, since then I have accumulated a sufficient estate which, if properly managed, will furnish me an ample income for the balance of my life. I mention this to show that the salary would be very little inducement to me to violate that promise. Going back to my age, Justice Holmes served very ably on the Supreme Court of the United States until he was over ninety.

Sincerely,
W. D. ANDERSON.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

MOOS OF THE MOMENT

BY UNCLE BOB

of the Kraft Dairy Farm Service

If I could get as many important people to vote for me as vote for Sudan Grass, I think I could be President. This grass was brought to America from North Central Africa and, as might be expected, it resists both heat and drought. It makes fine grazing when other pastures are dry and unproductive. If seeded in May the crop will be ready for grazing in about six weeks.

In Circular 125, the Extension Service of Mississippi reminds us that Sudan Grass grows especially well on fertile and well fertilized soil. It does not do well on sandy soils or soils that are low in fertility. It should be sown at the rate of 30 pounds of seed per acre, about 1 inch deep on heavy soils and 1½ inches deep on light fertile soils. To eliminate any danger of prussic acid poisoning, it is suggested that you do not permit grazing until the Sudan is 18 inches high or more—nor after frost. To get Circular 125, write the Extension Service, Mississippi State College, State College, Mississippi.

Indiana is another ardent supporter of Sudan Grass. Their experience shows that an acre of Sudan will carry from one to three head of cattle, depending upon the fertility of the soil. As hay, Sudan will ordinarily yield from 2½ to 3 tons per acre, and it may run as high as 4 tons. Indiana also tells you how to get a mixed crop of soybeans and Sudan Grass for roughage. The soybean seed should be drilled with the ordinary grain drill set for from four to six pecks on the oats scale and thoroughly recleaned Sudan Grass seed may be applied through the grass seed attachment or broadcast separately at 10 to 16 pounds per acre and covered with a harrow. Send for Leaflet No. 188, Department of Agricultural Extension, Purdue University, Lafayette, Indiana.* This is a valuable leaflet for you to have if you decide to grow Sudan.

Climb in, folks, there's lots of room in this Sudan.

Have you ever tried to figure out the difference in cost between the food value cattle obtain from good pasture and the food value they get from harvested crops? Well, Minnesota has and it's mighty interesting. Averaging up four different kinds of pasture and four different harvested crops, they found the cost of the harvested crop was more than double the cost of pasture. On top of that, the pasture crop is harvested by the cattle instead of by you, thus saving you hours of work. Be sure to get the bulletin that tells all about this cost-finding study. Write for Bulletin 241, Extension Service, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minnesota.*

While you're about it, I also suggest that you ask Minnesota for Extension Folder 106. This reports another fact-finding study, this time, on the methods of cooling milk. They found that when it was cooled in air at 10°F. below zero, it took an hour for the temperature of the milk to drop from 90° to 77°. When milk was cooled in circulating water at 47° above zero, the temperature of the milk dropped from 90° to 54° in an hour's time. The moral of that is that milk just can't be cooled properly in the air.

Along about next August, do you suppose it would be proper to say that the milk shortage had been hit by a green Sudan?

To get back to the subject of cooling milk, I recommend that you invest a postage stamp for a free copy of Farmers' Bulletin No. 976, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The ideas contained in this booklet will help you to size up your cooling tank and see if it is set up to do the right kind of job. There's no sense in losing money on sour or off-flavored milk when a little rearranging may fix things up.

The milk you save from souring means a little extra milk for the Nation. And a little extra milk from thousands of dairy farmers can play a mighty important part in our country's battle.

Home, James . . . in the green Sudan.

Mississippi's 1944 quota of Victory Gardens is 450,000. "Grow More in '44" is the slogan of patriotic gardeners this Spring!

Fresh vegetables from your Victory Garden will help you give your family healthy meals. Let modern, "protective cookery" keep vital vitamins in the food!

Don't let surplus vegetables go to waste — food is a vital war material. Electric refrigeration can keep vegetables fresh for coming meals or for canning.

Eat what you can — then can what you can't. That's the proper way to conserve food. Here again, modern cookery comes to your aid, making canning far easier.

LET A HOME SERVICE ADVISOR HELP YOU plan better-balanced meals under rationing. A member of our Home Service Department is anxious to be of service to you in meal planning or canning.

* Any reduction you can safely make in your use of electricity will help conserve critical materials. Remember — electricity is STILL CHEAP — use all you need but be sure to need all you use.

For this old gal is off again
To some enchanted shore.

Some 10,000 miles she goes
To have her weekly fling,

'Twas by design not by luck
She chose this distant shore;
(The only place she hadn't stuck
Her damned old nose before.)

Now having rubbed the royal nose
She crossed another sea,
To scare the natives, I suppose,
And watch them plant a tree.

This happy thought occurred to me
As homeward bound she sped,
Why couldn't they have shipped the tree
And planted her instead?

Cockeyed Draft Business

The American people are getting fed up on the ever changing draft regulations that come in from Washington. How the members of the local draft boards retain their sanity is one of the great mysteries of this topsy turvy world.

The case of the following man could be multiplied indefinitely, throughout the United States. He was over 26, was due to leave for the induction center Monday of this week, had disposed of his home and car, had moved his wife and children to the home of his parents, and was all ready to go. Late last week, an order came in from Washington to postpone induction of men over 26 to some INDEFINITE date. By the time he (and thousands of others in the same shape) gets his family back and reestablishes himself, there will be another directive to send him to Shelby.

The draft business has been like Shakespeare said, "confusion worse confounded." Nobody knows wherethehell he stands. American citizens should know where they stand and should not be subjected to the caprices of some featherweight in Washington who is like the man who got on his horse and rode off in EVERY direction.

The Congress should take a hand and protect the people from unnecessary trouble with the draft.

A Poor Example Set By Governor

Last week Camp McCain was deluged with Governor Tom Bailey, Commander in Chief of the State, and a big bunch of his 330 odd powder puff colonels to witness the goings-on at that camp. Hundreds of gallons of gasoline were used to transport the powder puff colonels, who wear GOLD eagles on their shoulders—and by Governor Bailey. Thousands of what the government leads us to believe are precious man-hours were wasted by them and by high-ranking officers and enlisted men in showing the Governor and his party simulated warfare. This occasion furnished a splendid example of unnecessary waste of materials and manpower by the government itself.

Perhaps a number of his gold-eagled colonels participated in the last war, but certainly Tom Bailey did not, although he and I are of about the same age. He could have gone to war just as easily as I did in 1917. I venture to say that about all the powder he knows is talcum powder. When he was a young man of military age, he did not do—as Sam Lumpkin did—offer his services where gunpowder was used.

I like Tom Bailey all right, but I think the whole affair was a damn farce, ill timed and unbecoming.

Somebody ought to tell the camp officials and the governor that there is a war on.

Fine war!!

Gutting License

The American Legion, in sponsoring carnivals, is merely using its name to issue gutting licenses to these carnivals.

Mississippi law permits shows, carnivals, boxing matches and other entertainments, when sponsored by the American Legion, to evade the payment of privilege taxes.

The American Legion was founded on a high plane, with high ideals of Americanism and other high-sounding phrases, and it is quite a let-down when the American Legion, to gather a few paltry dollars, sponsors dirty shows, skin games, hoochie coochie shows and other money grabbing schemes.

I am a member of the American Legion, but just a dues-paying member, and I should be at the meetings to raise my voice—I will admit this.

I am informed that the local post has its handsome building and large lot fully paid for, and it appears to me that it is no longer necessary—if it was ever necessary—for it to sponsor entertainments that take vast sums of money from the community.

I hope that the American Legion will quit this practice.

Confusing Draft Regulations

The draft regulations, changed almost daily, are not only confusing to the young men concerned, but also to the general public, including the employers of the young men, and, it seems, there should be a more clear-cut, definite procedure.

While such a procedure might work hardships on a few individuals, it seems to us that when a man's "number comes up", he should be inducted immediately if he is physically eligible and not engaged in SPECIFIED essential work.

In short, we believe that all "deferments" should be done away with. The withholding of deferments from a few individuals would work real hardships here and there, but it would be more than compensated by the creation of faith in the draftees that they were all being fed out of the same spoon.

Every man knows his own number and he can tell within reasonable limits when his call will come, and he should prepare himself for his call.

The "deferment" business COULD be the means of working monkey business into the draft procedure, whether it is or not.

The Yalobusha Dam

We are devoting a good deal of space on our front page to a statement from Lt. Col. R. W. Sauer, District Engineer, of Vicksburg office of the Corps of Engineers, to a comprehensive and authentic statement of the recent flood, of the effect the already completed dams had on the situation, and of the prospects of the building of the Enid Dam and the New Grenada Resovoir. Those interested in the subject should find Col. Sauer's statement very well worth studying.

As I have repeatedly stated, it is my opinion that, if all of the people in the area wanted the dam and the government did NOT want the dam, there would be no dam; and, conversely, if all of the people in the area did not want the dam and the government DID want it, the dam would be build; in short, that the local people are helpless in the matter.

It is significent that Col. Sauer says in the first paragraph of his statement that the project is only 50 percent complete. The last paragraph is also very significant.

Cut The State Aloose

If the Democrats of Mississippi want to do anything to circumvent the effects of the Smith case, recently affirmed by the U. S. Supreme Court by an 8 to 1 vote, they must see to it that EVERY state law pertaining to primary elections be repealed, otherwise the decision in the Smith case will apply with greater force to Mississippi than it does to Texas, for two important reasons: first, the expenses of the election in Mississippi are paid from the public treasuries (in Texas, by the candidates themselves), and, second, Mississippi has the Corrupt Practice Act (Texas has none).

The Democratic Party in Mississippi MUST become a body having no legal status whatever, but must be a body like the Masons, Elks, or Rotarians which make their own rules about the acceptance of members, and pay their own expenses.

There seems to be no alternative, in view of the Smith case.

Overage Officers

This is a young man's war.

Old men can not stand the pressure of modern combat conditions.

By "old men," we do not mean men with long white beards, tottering toward the grave, but we mean men on the dark side of forty.

The War Deaprtment is gradually weeding out the old boys and this practice should be accelerated.

It should be the duty of some section of the War Deaprtment to look into what some of these old dudes are doing, if anything. If they are not earning their board, they should be taken aside politely and given the air.

This is a young man's war.

Today's Provebs

My son, never speak unkindly of the New Deal Democrats, nor knock them for God made them just the same as He made crabs, hornets, ants, lizards, roaches, fleas, lice, bedbugs, snakes, skunks and other unpleasant things. Why such things were made, God only knows, but up to now I will be darned if I know.

A committee of the admirers of the President was trying to decide where to place a statue of Roosevelt in the capitol. They decided it would not do to place it near George Washington because he never told a lie. They also decided it would not do to place him next to Lincoln because Lincoln was known as "Honest Abe," so after due deliberation they decided to put Roosevelt's next to Christopher Columbus because, first, Columbus did not know where he was going, second, did not know when he got there, third, did not know where he had been when he got back, and fourth, handled it all on borrowed money.—Author Unknown.

An Explanation

Nearly every week, the reader will see that such and such serviceman has been promoted, decorated or otherwise honored for meritorious service.

The information that we get most often come from official sources, either in the States or from abroad. They come from the several Public Relation offices of the commands to which the men belong. Some Public Relations offices are more alert than others. In fact, some of them, I venture to say, never send anything to the home town newspapers. If they send anything they send the matter to the larger daily newspapers that circulate in the territory from which the serviceman comes.

Depending, as we do upon either the Public Relation offices or upon the parents for our information, we very probably, through no fault of our own, publish some items that are not nearly so worthy of note as are others which we know not of.

Take Sgt. Mickey Angevine, for example. He has been almost everywhere and seen almost everything, and has medals galore, but he is too modest to say anything about the honors he has received. The Public Relations office of his command has never sent in anything. That leaves us a blank to work on. I imagine there are scores of cases of like nature concerning men from Grenada county.

Jimmie Arrington, guest speaker at the 20th Anniversary of Grenada Rotary Club got off a a good one about Elenor. A speaker was spouting off all about what good things Roosevelt and the WPA had done. An old man in the rear arose and said, " I don't like 'em." The speaker, ignoring the interruption, went on to speak of the FSA, etc., and was again interrupted by the old man saying, "I don't like em either." In concluding the speaker, to clinch his point, said, "Why, Mr. Roosevelt loves the common man so well that he takes the problems of the common man to bed with him at night." The old man again arose and said, "I don't like HER either."

Seen, Heard and Told By The Editor

I heard a good many things at the Ground Hog shop that I can not put in the paper although they were pretty spicy.

Help him get a line to home

About the only time he can get to the telephone is a few short hours in the evening. That's when thousands of other boys in the camps want to use Long Distance, too.

Any time you are not on the lines, there's a better chance for a soldier's call to get through.

So unless it's urgent, we hope you won't be using Long Distance from 7 to 10 o'clock at night. Save those hours for the service men.

MR. VOLLIE:

My cousin, Mrs. Ima Bride was telling me about your Vittle Shop and as you know, Jack and I are to be married very soon, so naturally I am beginning to get my bearings on this housekeeping problem and food is so very important and plays a prominent part in a person's married life, that it behooves me to get started out right.

I was curious to see your Vittle Shop, so I slipped in and thought I would look around a little, but I sure did get a big surprise.

I was looking for a place about like Mama traded in back home, but your place would do credit to any big city—It is so clean and well arranged that a child could shop with ease and your fresh fruits and vegetables were just lovely—Am glad Ima told be about you—

Cousin Ima Told Me

Cousin Ima also told me that you and Mrs. Vollie operate on the Golden Rule basis, that is you try to see that a customer is treated courteously, checked out in their turn, given full value for their money, every sale must be satisfactory and that you stand behind every article you sell and are ever ready to assist customers in any way possible to make their shopping a pleasure instead of a burden.

You Said It

You said that from your experience as a grocer, you have decided that it is best to carry in stock the things the customer wants instead of what you want to sell the customer and from the looks of your stock, you are trying to do just that—rationing considered.

You said you would help me on my first order and I can hardly wait to get married, to begin shopping in your store, for I know it will be a pleasure. I told Jack that I was going to trade with you after we start to keeping house and he was pleased, because he said he knew you and that anything you told me that I could depend upon it.

Will be seeing you soon,

Sincerely,

(Miss) Futur,E Bride

ABOUT

The importance of the tire conservation program, effected in 1942, will be appreciated when it is known that the number of passenger car tires rationed and those sold on new cars in 1942 only equalled 8.8 per cent of the passenger car tires shipped for all purposes in 1941.
Neglected small fire treed cuts and bruises can become serious rubber wasters. A small cut, even though it does not go entirely through the fabric, lets in dirt, water and foreign matter. Constant flexing increases the size of the cut until the tire is beyond repair. Prompt repair is a patriotic duty these days.

Sprouted Grain Is Source of Vitamin A

Wheat or Oat Shoots Will Supply Poultry

If you are having a hard time buying enough feeding oils, alfalfa meal and yellow corn for your poultry laying flock, Dr. M. W. Taylor, associate biochemist in nutrition at Rutgers university, suggests you try sprouted grains to supply that essential vitamin A.

Through his research Dr. Taylor has found that sprouted wheat or oats grown in flat trays for about two weeks, with exposure to sunlight to promote greenness, is a fairly good source of carotene or provitamin A.

"At least, it is a good source to use when natural grass range or silage is not available," he says. "A potency of 5,000 U.S.P. units per pound of fresh seedlings may easily be obtained and, as many poultrymen already know, this material is readily consumed by hens. Fed at the rate of 5 pounds per 100 hens per day, the seedlings will furnish about one-third the recommended amount of vitamin A which is enough to prevent a serious deficiency."

Spread Grain in Trays.

For poultrymen who have never sprouted grains before, Dr. Taylor outlines the procedure:

"Oats or wheat are your best choice, since they sprout easily, grow fairly quick and are usually available. Soak them overnight to promote rapid sprouting. Next, spread them out in one-fourth inch layers in flat trays with two or three sheets of newspapers in the bottom so the trays hold moisture around the roots. The thickness is important. If too thick, the seedlings will not develop sufficient green color. If too thin, the roots will be exposed to too much air and light.

"Keep the tray moist by sprinkling once or twice daily with water containing chloride of lime at the rate of a heaping teaspoonful to a pail (three gallons) of water. The chloride of lime will keep down mold growth.

"For the first two or three days, or until sprouting is definitely noticed, keep the tray in subdued light. After this, place it near a sunny window so it will receive as much light as possible. The stronger the light the higher the vitamin A content. Slow growth in a cool room is better than rapid growth at high temperatures."

The one drawback of sprouted grains is the space required to grow them. However, Dr. Taylor estimates that a total of 10 square feet of sprouting area, divided in three parts and used in rotation, will produce from 1 to 2½ pounds of seedlings daily, or enough for 20 to 50 hens.

U.S.D.A. Has 4,000 Strains Of Barley in Collection

A collection of about 4,000 established varieties and strains of barleys from all over the world is maintained by the U. S. department of agriculture to facilitate the breeding of better barleys for different parts of the country. The only larger collection is reported in Russia. Typical of the work of government cereal specialists and barley breeders is the experiment now going on to develop new varieties of barley resistant to the green bug or aphid, which in 1942 caused a loss of more than $3,000,000 in Texas and Oklahoma barley fields.

Phenothiazine Expels Many Intestinal Parasites

Phenothiazine is today the most widely used of all drugs for the removal of internal parasites of farm animals. In less than five years this synthetic coal-tar derivative has proved the effectiveness of its anthelmintic action against most of the economically important stomach and intestinal roundworms. It is used for many kinds of livestock and is extremely effective.

U. S. Heavy Bombers Blast Balkans, Hammer German Industries in France; Jap Forces Advance in India Theater; Congress Studies New Draft Problems

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

EUROPE:
Aid Russ

With Allied troops in Great Britain poised for the jump into western Europe, U. S. bombers took to the air to blast the Balkans in conjunction with the Russian armies' advance into Rumania.

In the English Isles, an electrical tenseness was reported as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's high command was said to have set the zero hour, and Allied planes continued to roar over the channel to blast Nazi defenses and industries in France and Germany.

As the Russians edged toward the vital Rumanian oil fields of Ploesti, U. S. bombers thundered over the city from the south to blast railway tank cars filled for the long haul to western Europe. U. S. bombers also dropped explosives on aircraft factories and railroad yards of the Hungarian capital of Budapest.

Psychological War

Leaving no stone unturned, the Allies have been showering Axis Europe with propaganda leaflets as well as bombs in an effort to undermine German morale and encourage underground resistance in occupied countries.

Flashy leaflets have told the Germans that their surrender during the last war left most of their industries intact, while continued resistance in this war will only result in the complete demolition of their factories. Other leaflets have condemned Nazi officials for failing to provide for evacuation of the civilian population from bombed areas.

Small newspapers dropped in France have informed the people of guerrilla activity, and of the Allied objectives in bombing Nazi targets in the country, while similar publications dumped over Holland have pointed up America's war effort and the heavy assaults on Berlin.

AGRICULTURE:
Egg Supports

Sen. Wherry

To bolster sagging egg markets, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones told a group of mid-western senators led by Senator Wherry (Neb.), that WFA planned to support prices by purchases of from 27 to 32 cents per dozen in distressed areas where handlers paid producers a minimum of 26 cents a dozen.

Declaring that the WFA's biggest problem was disposal of the eggs, Jones called upon the congressmen to support legislation for sale of perishable commodities below parity levels. At present, perishables cannot be sold at such prices until they evidence deterioration, with the result that rot often sets in, Jones said. If the civilian population would eat one more egg per week per person, the surplus egg problem would be largely solved, Jones added.

Although adequate storage space has been found for frozen eggs, Jones said, production has been influenced by manpower problems. Wherever possible, the government has increased its contracts for the product, he said.

Canadian Oats

Seeking to relieve the tight feed situation, the War Food administration has arranged for the importation of 20,000,000 bushels of Canadian oats by May 15 via rail and the Great Lakes.

Under the plan, U. S. railroads would immediately send 75 cars daily into the Canadian interior for the grain, with 25 more to be sent later, if domestic needs for the cars are not pressing. The rails would carry the oats to Duluth, whence they would be routed to Chicago and Toledo by boat. From 15 to 20 days generally would be required for the round trip, officials estimated.

Because competitive bidding between the two cities would bring Canadian grain above the U. S. price ceiling, the Commodity Credit corporation might purchase the oats directly from Canada for resale at lower prices in the U. S.

GOP:
Willkie Quits

Stormy petrel of the Republican party since 1940, big, blustery Wendell Willkie withdrew his bid for leadership of the GOP, while New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was assuming the position through a popular draft.

Willkie's sudden demise and Dewey's ascension were occasioned by progressive Wisconsin's elections for delegates to the Republican national convention in Chicago, June 26. Although Willkie actively campaigned through the state, he failed to win even one delegate, while Dewey, who had asked that his name be withdrawn from the election, won 18.

Since Wisconsin has long been noted for its liberalism, Willkie deliberately selected it as the grounds for a test of Republican sentiment, basing his bid for delegates on a program for heavier war sacrifices and extensive U. S. cooperation in world affairs.

DRAFT:
26-29 Next

Both selective service and congress struggled over the problem of supplying the military services with younger men and maintaining record war production, with continued emphasis on shifting 4-Fs in unimportant work to essential occupations.

Referring to the decision to only defer key industrial and agricultural workers in the 18 to 25 age group, Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey declared that the same policy would next be extended to the 26 to 29 class.

In seeking to channel 4-Fs into necessary work, the house military affairs committee called upon selective service to obtain a list of essential occupations and manpower shortage areas for use in guiding the employment of 4Fs, who would face induction into a labor battalion if failing to take vital jobs.

State Inductions

With 1,265,000 men, New York is scheduled to lead the states in the number of soldiers and sailors to be inducted by July 1, with Pennsylvania with 904,000, and Illinois with 700,000, ranking second and third.

Other states with high totals include California with 667,000; Ohio with 610,000; Texas with 554,000, and Michigan with 452,000.

Nevada with 11,000 is scheduled to contribute the smallest amount of men, with Wyoming and Delaware with 23,000, the next lowest.

PACIFIC:
Eye Stilwell

While U. S. bombers continued to pummel Jap defense outposts in the Pacific, British troops strived desperately to check the enemy's stubborn advance toward the American operated Bengal-Assam railroad, 80 miles within India.

Working over the whole Jap outpost system in the Pacific, navy fliers pounded the enemy's storage and defense installations on Truk in the Carolines, while army airmen repeated heavy attacks on the Nips' supply base of Hollandia in New Guinea, feeder point for barges operating along the coastline.

Seeking to cut the Assam-Bengal railway feeding Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's U. S.-Chinese troops fighting to carve out a new supply road to China in northern Burma, the Jap attack in India was concentrated in the rugged hills above Imphal.

U. S. Businessmen Attempt To Define Free Enterprise

Chamber of Commerce Officials Inaugurate Education Campaign Designed to Teach Specific Phase of Democracy.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building
Washington, D.C.

In the last few weeks in Washington—and in London, too, for that matter—there has been a crescendo demand for an explanation of our foreign policy, and it is reported that a similar cry is going up from the soldiers at the front—What are we fighting for?

Secretary Hull attempted an answer not too satisfactory to his critics. There will be further official efforts at elucidation. But at least one brass-tacks institution whose headquarters is in Washington has come to the conclusion that before we can understand what we are fighting for, we must have a better understanding of what we think we want to fight for. Everybody on the allied side claims that democracy is the common ground upon which all stand but there is considerable difference as to how each one defines democracy.

Leaving the broader international aspects for a moment, I want to report a unique campaign of education whose purpose is to find out just what is meant by one specific phase of democracy about which we hear a great deal, namely, "free enterprise." This organized effort is being promulgated by the one group whose members use that term most frequently.

And, as their leaders admit, frequently don't know its meaning and often do not even subscribe to it—the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Before me, I have a document from which I want to quote five lines:

"Said one newspaperman to another: 'I'd fall dead if I found a businessman who wasn't in favor of free enterprise.'

"Replied the other: 'I'd fall dead if I found a businessman who really wanted it.' "

The document quoted from is not a communist pronouncement — it is "The Economic Sentinel" printed by the United States Chamber of Commerce, and it is just part of an educational effort on the part of this body of businessmen, whose objective is (I'm quoting from another pamphlet published by the Chamber of Commerce):

"To develop in every community a group of leaders who really understand, and who can explain and who can convincingly advocate the economic system of free, private, competitive enterprise, or to put it another way, American enterprise."

An Important Discovery

The campaign of education among the Chamber's own members has been going on for some time but the general public didn't realize what was happening until they heard Eric Johnston, the president of the chamber, make a speech early in March, copies of which, I am told, are still in great demand.

Mr. Johnston criticized labor but for every one of the "seven deadly sins" which he said labor had committed, he confessed a parallel sin committed by business.

Johnston, in making this speech and in his subsequent writings and utterances, is practicing what his organization has been preaching in the campaign they are now carrying on through the chamber's department of governmental affairs in Washington.

They provide a program which their local chapters can follow, telling how to organize discussion groups, which they point out, should include public officials, ministers, professional men and women and — believe it or not — they strongly recommend the (paid) assistance of a college professor. The purpose is the understanding of that democratic principle—free enterprise.

It was from the document compiled by one of these doctors of philosophy, Dr. V. O. Watts, economic counsel of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, for such group guidance from which I was quoting.

For and Against

If confession is good for the soul, the soul of business in Olympia, Washington (where the quoted lecture was given), must be hale and hearty after hearing Dr. Watts declare:

"A city chamber of commerce opposes restrictions which neighboring towns sometimes place on deliveries of merchandise by city merchants and truckers. Yet the same organization is likely to help erect similar barriers against out-of-state or out-of-town enterprise which might compete with its own industries or merchants.

"Businessmen dislike restrictive policies of farmers and labor unions. Yet many of them say that free competition among themselves would be ruinous. So they lobby for measures to restrict business competition and to legalize price-fixing by government or by their own organizations.

"Chambers of commerce frequently join the clamor for uneconomic local projects of the state or federal government on the ground that 'other places are getting theirs; why shouldn't we get ours?' Such chamber of commerce socialism leads to increased tax burdens which correspondingly restrict markets and jobs in free enterprise."

This is the kind of strong medicine which the United States Chamber of Commerce recommends the average American to absorb so that "free enterprise" may be understood. Here is another sample of straight-from-the-shoulder talk:

"Recent corrosions of economic liberty in the United States are not due to the efforts of a few communists or fascists. Instead they chiefly come from the fact that so many of us care only about our own liberties and are indifferent or even hostile to possession of similar liberties by others of our fellow citizens. In fact, for a momentary gain in higher prices, higher wage rates or government favors, many of us are willing even to sell our own freedom."

I wish I might quote further but space does not permit it for it goes without saying that real "free enterprise," its virtues and its benefits, are expounded in great detail. But this is enough to show you a surprising degree of frankness, a remarkable willingness to think. It is something when the very people who often are loudest in their accusation that "free enterprise" is being destroyed by Tom, Dick, Harry, John (Lewis) et alia, are willing to admit that they, themselves, may be enemies of free, competitive enterprise.

Hitting the Trail

When Eric Johnston arose and declared that labor and management must "hit the sawdust trail together," he started something. But actually he was only carrying on something which his organization — I don't know whether he was the chicken or the egg — had already started. It is a process by which businessmen (and in businessmen, the farmer is included for he is a mighty important part of the American free enterprise system) can get an understanding of what the American system of economic democracy really is and then see whether they are really supporting this American system or not.

I have no idea how successful Mr. Johnston and his colleagues will be but I know some of them are enthusiastic enough to believe that he has rendered a service which makes him eligible as a contender for the job of keynoter at the Republican National convention in June and some are even optimistic enough to provide themselves with curry combs just in case they might be called upon to groom a dark horse for the presidential race.

But politics aside, there is cause for rejoicing when anybody sets out to try to define at least one phase of the thing we are supposed to be fighting for and to do some thinking about it. As Leonard Read, general manager of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, said just a few weeks ago:

"We have come to the conclusion that the best contribution we can make to the thinking in our country is to improve our own thinking."

Amen to that.

Household Hints

Thin old blankets are useful as an interlining for a child's coat or a baby's bunting, as an ironing board pad, or as silencer cloths for dining-room table.

Fold sweaters carefully and keep them stored in a drawer so they keep their shape.

Dunk the broom in a bucket of water at least once a week to keep it clean, healthy and long-lived.

• • •

Don't hang feather pillows in the sun as sunlight draws out the natural oil from the feathers and makes them less pliable.
